

Post Bi-Election Thoughts
Doug Plumb, Toronto Centre CAP 2008

I am accused of being negative, but exposing negative facts are paths to truth in this time in which we live and truth must always be our path - no matter how unpleasant. To seek a path of truth is freedom, and only freedom can lead to true happiness.

I have to say that I knew the media was corrupt - but not this blatant about it. One of the them paused and then pronounced my name as "Dooog" Plumb on CP- 24. They didn't mention my platform at all, but did talk about Liz White. This is to be expected, Liz ran a platform that is within the UN agenda of Sustainable Development. One of my goals in this campaign was to expose Sustainable Development & Global Warming / Global Cooling / Climate Change for what it is. No one voted for Sustainable Development, and almost every "westernized" country is operated under that mandate. Its a UN air taxation agenda and we are already in world government.

Bob Rae got lots of free media coverage, they managed to pronounce his name correctly and Bob got lots of corporate donations in the form of free media that other candidates did not receive. Bob told me during the campaign that corporate donorship was illegal after I stated that I wasn't getting any corporate support during a "debate". What is legal or illegal really depends on how much money you have in this country - its the first question any judge or lawyer at the law society will ask you when in court or complaining about crimes committed by lawyers to the law society. Its a pivotal issue and its partly what they use to judge guilt or innocence on. Bob Rae and his liberal campaign is not the first and will likely not be the last elitist to do this - if he did in fact break the law.

Zbigniew Brzezinski explained how there would be an elite class who are not bounded by conventional ethics as the rest of us in his now restricted book called "Between Two Ages".

The debates were structured around local issues, this is stupid manipulation trick but it works on a tired and over worked public. Perhaps we will elect a mayor based on his ideas about the Afghanistan war. Of course we don't want open public discussions regarding national or international issues because truth often seeps out. Someone may ask about Haiti or Iraq. (Yes, we are in Iraq). No one would want particular questions about local Agenda 21 or "Smart Growth" either so perhaps a local election based on the Afghan war would be appropriate.

All countries have elections, even Stalinist Russia had elections. We have elections too, but it would be a mistake to think that they are any less planned than a professional wrestling match or the elections in other communist countries.

I only got labeled as a anti-semite once, even though I am not an anti-semite at all, I expected this to happen at least a few more times and was pleased to only hear it once. I feel as much sympathy for the Jewish people in their country as I do for the Palistinians. I've seen Jews shot on You-Tube during protests in Israel. I believe Israel has a right to exist - just to keep the record straight. Its a shame that most people do not look beneath the surface for solutions to this conflict. These solutions are simple and they do exist and they are of course economic. "War is fought for money" - Platos Republic.

I don't believe any of the candidates were in this for other than noble reasons, I believe Tindal to be mislead in this Global Warming / Climate Change cult. Cults can get anyone - its not a question of character or intelligence and this Global Warming/Climate Change thing is a cult. I have respect for Meredith, he was shackled by his own party. I don't like the NDP or Green parties on the principle that they pretend to stand for the common man but in reality stand to implement the elitist agenda of Sustainable Development. Bob Rae is part of the establishment but doesn't hide this fact, but this doesn't mean he is bad personally. Maybe one day I'll have coffee with Liz White and talk with her about Global Warming, Climate Change or whatever the boob-tube buzzword is used to describe it at the time. El-Farouk Khaki is a lawyer but doesn't attempt to hide this fact and admits it during the "debates".

There are many people that work within the establishment and are trying to change it or steer it in sensible directions. No one likes this sytem - no one ever could - there are too many secrets ! No doubt that everyone is afraid and this is the nature of a fascist system. Fascism is much more encompassing in definition than "public-private" partnerships and is a psychological-sociological phenomenon as much as economic- its effects can be seen in autopsies [Political Ponerology]. Even the ones that pretend that they do like the "system" are desperately unhappy and often use cocaine, prostitutes, alcohol, or other crutches to forget.

The system can never change until the general public demands it. No politician or "leader" can help us. We can never win a hot war against the establishment. We can only rise up and show honest politicians that we stand behind them in a peaceful manner. Run, don't walk, from those spousing "leadership" - they are not your comrades.

We learned a lot from this experience and I apologise for how some fliers were recklessly delivered. Its my fault for not explaining this properly to the volunteers. I hope that if you got our flier that you take the time to read it, after all, we never expected to win, we just want people to think more rather than accept what presstitutes have to say on the "Boob Tube" - after all - its for boobs. I canceled my cable months ago and no longer watch and I am much better for it. I urge others to do the same. That flyer contains only truth.

The establishment parties will get a large part of their expenses back, plus earn an additional fee for each vote. Its good business to be in politics for some compared to others. They will enjoy free re-inforcement of their ideas on the corporate media and have their names mentioned often. If you want to know who is truly populist, watch the corporate media coverage - or lack of it for any particular candidate in any election.

I will offer whatever opportunity I can for a hard working, under-nourished, sleep deprived public to take this sytem back in future elections. Every single one of us from the richest bankers to the common man could be so much richer in character, knowledge, experience and in wealth if we ever got the system back. We must recognise fascism as the sociological disease that it is.

Freedom is truth and truth is freedom.
